

BATTLE OF FLANDERS REACHES ITS PEAK AS GERMAN FORCES CONCENTRATE AGAINST ALLIES

Experienced French Forces Withdrew in North, Retiring To Prepared Positions Behind Valenciennes—French Spokesmen Deny Calais Has Been Captured by Nazi Troops

(By International News Service)
PARIS, May 27—The battle of Flanders reached its peak as German forces concentrated all efforts on the northern Allied army in a terrific battle with Belgian forces near Menin and Courtrai.

At the same time, experienced French forces withdrew in the north, retiring to prepared positions behind Valenciennes, according to a French military spokesman.

Today's French communique said the Germans suffered "heavy losses."

The spokesman denied German claims that Calais had been captured by Nazi troops yesterday. He said this channel port, only 22 miles from the British port of Dover, was still in French hands at 9 a. m. today.

The battle intensified yesterday, lasted all through last night and was still raging this morning, according to the French spokesman. He said:

"The enemy is attacking at numerous points, sometimes on large fronts with considerable effectiveness and enormous amounts of material."

He denied that the German motorized "panza" divisions are relentlessly pounding the lines of the northern Allied armies.

During the day yesterday, he said the Germans launched two attacks in the Valenciennes area, which were powerfully supported. These attacks were repulsed with considerable losses to the Germans, according to the spokesman.

Round Up Aliens
London, May 27—In a lightning drive a thousand Scotland Yard detectives rounded up 1,500 women aliens today and trucked them off to concentration camps—all within a few hours. The 1,500 arrests were confined to London alone, as police throughout the country rounded up 1,000 more for internment for the duration of the war.
All women prisoners fell in the "Class B" category as defined in the new enemy alien list.

Nazis Claim Planes Bombed Paris Airdromes
With the German Army in Flanders and Artois — German war planes brought hostilities to the city of Paris, with a series of attacks on airdromes, ringing the French capital, the Nazi high command announced today.
In a detailed resume of developments within the last 24 hours, military headquarters continued to insist that Calais had fallen to the Germans, and that the combined Belgian, British and French forces trapped in the Valenciennes sector faced a hopeless situation.

The Allied army within the German "sack" are having huge losses, but according to military dispatches, are being gradually decimated.
German quarters denied the Allied claims of heavy destruction by air-bombs behind the German lines.
The communique said:
"Our troops continued their attacks in Flanders and Artois, tightening the ring around the enemy armies."
"We succeeded in driving a wedge into the enemy front north of Menin as far as a point near Ypres."

Continue Trial
Harrisburg, May 27—The trial of five Dauphin County Democrats, charged with macing State employees, today was "continued generally" by specially presiding Judge Hughes, of Washington County.
District Attorney Shalley, when asked if the Commonwealth intended to press charges against the five men, said he "didn't know." The ruling, however, was believed the first move to withdraw the charges against the Democratic County Committee members as they were acquitted in April on similar accounts.

LANGHORNE FIRE CO.
WAS ORGANIZED IN 1829 Purchased An Engine in Its First Year, 1829; Incoporated in 1835

PLOT WAS A GIFT
LANGHORNE, May 27—Of the Langhorne Fire Company, which is 111 years old, an interesting sketch has been prepared by one of the members, the details of the sketch including the following:
In 1829, records show that Langhorne first had a fire company, and purchased an engine that year. The company was incorporated April 10, 1835. On April 24, 1871, the engine house and apparatus were destroyed by fire. Then on May 1, 1871, Jonathan Gillam gave the company a lot on Bellevue avenue for a new fire house, and on May 6, 1871, a committee reported purchasing a suction hand fire engine from Eagle Fire Company, of New Hope. After several years of service, it was donated to the Bucks County Historical Society and can now be seen in its building in Doylestown, Pa.
The Langhorne Fire Company transferred its real estate, fire apparatus and fixtures to Langhorne Borough on January 11, 1876, and the borough assumed all indebtedness.
The company was reorganized under the name of Langhorne Fire Company, No. 1, and a new charter was granted
April 2, 1907.
Langhorne Borough Council built a new Town Hall, which was dedicated in 1910, and is occupied by the fire company. Borough Council and post office.
The officers of the Langhorne Fire Company are as follows: President, William P. Meldrum; vice-president, Frank C. LaRue; recording secretary, Harry Federick; financial secretary, Norman Bilger; treasurer, George C.
Mather; fire chief, Charles Paul; assistant chief, Thomas Mercer; chief engineer, Woerner Davenport; assistant engineer, Bernard Stradling;

ITALIANS ORGANIZE TO FIGHT 5TH COLUMNISTS

Plan For Organization To

Activities
GIVE $95 TO RED CROSS

Plans for the formation of an organization to combat any Fifth Columnist Trojan Horse tactics, or any act directly or indirectly against the government of the United States, were formulated at an eleventh-hour meeting of Italian-Americans held in the St. Ann's Athletic Association clubhouse yesterday afternoon.
Only about 50 persons were in reality contacted to attend the first meeting, but when word spread about town that it was an open affair, over 250 persons of Italian heritage attended, as well as a representative of the Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 392, American Legion.
Anthony Russo spoke to the delegation and told of the purpose in calling the meeting and before he finished he had the audience in such a fervor on the probability of an attack on this country that everyone in the audience was ready to carry a gun to fight for the United States, if necessary.
Several times during his talk, Mr.
Russo was interrupted by frequent cheering, hand-clapping and the stamp of feet, in regards to statements that all should stand by the American flag, especially those who have come from foreign countries and became American citizens.

The bottom has dropped out of the marriage license market in Bucks county. The war has nothing to do with it, but the new Pennsylvania law requiring applicants to present medical certificates, knocked business completely out of proportion.
From the record-breaking rate of 100-a-day, business has fallen off to a mere total of two in a week. John McMahon, 22, Cornwells Heights, and Mary Ranku, 20, Andalusia, Kenneth Marriott, Burnett, 26, Madison, N. J., and Janet Stafford Banes, 22, Edgely, were the only ones who have applied for a license since the health law went into operation.

The next two meetings of the Bucks-will be held in Doylestown.

Tonight at the Doylestown Inn, the delphia dental surgeon, will discuss extraction for the general practitioner.

The meeting will be presided over by Dr. Henry Roseman, of Norristown, president of the society. Dr. Frederick Lutz, of Doylestown, is vice president.
Announcement has also been made that the dentists of the two county district will stage their annual outing at the Doylestown Country Club on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, June 19. Dinner will be served at the

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS
By FRANK R. KENT
"Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc."

Shall Congress Adjourn?
Washington, May 25.
THE question of whether Congress should adjourn soon after it passes the President's defense appropriation or whether it should stay in session through the summer—or as long as the war crisis continues—is one upon which a good deal hinges.
Concerning it there are two views, and there is pressure in both directions.

OBVIOUSLY, the President favors adjournment. He said as much in his defense message ten days ago.
True, he spoke then of Congress and the Executive as a "team," but almost in the same breath declared that should further emergency arise he would call Congress back in session. If this was not an invitation to adjourn, it was nothing at all. In effect, he handed Congress its collective hat. The reasons it would be more convenient for him to have the legislative branch out of the way as soon as the money has been given are clear enough.

ONE is that there would then be no agency to check or control executive handling of the program and no forum in which voices could be raised in dissent. For another, there would be no danger of Congressional initiative in amending, repealing or relaxing the oppressive New Deal laws which handicap industry and which everybody knows will lessen the competency and greatly increase the costliness of this vital business of arming ourselves. Mr.

Sorosis Officers Are here on Thursday afternoon, was in charge of Mrs. Harry Williams, Jr., a past president of the women's club.

urer, Mrs. Frank Whitman, and directors, Mrs. Edgar Frutcher, Mrs.
Harry Stewart, Mrs. Paul Townsend, and Mrs. Edward D. Osterhout.
Mrs. James B. Rudhart and Mrs.
Lester Ransom presented reports of the convention of State Federation of Women's Clubs, held recently in Harrisburg. Speakers at the convention brought out the fact that religion is the basis of democracy, and stated that "unless the principles of religion are instilled into the minds of the children today, democracy will be lost to the country."

Frank Eardley, 23, Dies of A Broken Neck and Fractured Skull
FOUR ARE INJURED

A broken neck and fractured skull caused instant death early yesterday morning for a Trenton, N. J., man, when the touring car in which he and Yardley bridge.

The dead: Frank Eardley, 23, of 77
S. Hermitage avenue, Trenton.
Eardley was riding in the rear seat when the accident took place, and it is believed that the shock of the sudden stop snapped the vertebrae of his neck.
Death was instantaneous.

jured, namely:

Trenton, driver of the car, sprained wrist and bruised left leg.

PASTOR DISCUSSES CHRISTIAN'S PART IF
U. S. GETS INTO WAR

Rev. Howard L. Zepp, Pastor of First Baptist Church, Delivers Timely Message

HAVE SOWN HATRED
"New Testament is Crystal Clear in Its Attitude Toward War"

"If the United States is drawn into war, what should I do as a Christian?"
This was the timely question asked and likewise answered by the Rev.
Howard L. Zepp in First Baptist Church, yesterday morning.

"Dying for one's ideals with non-violent resistance is one way to make those ideals live; killing or wounding for the sake of those ideals, kills or wounds the ideals as well," was one quotation which helped to impress some of the salient points of the message. The complete sermon follows:

Last week we discussed the fact that God cannot stop the war, first, because He made man in His own image, a free moral agent with power to do his own choosing; second, because God has willed a universe of moral order, and if the social order sows hate or malice or injustice, it is going to reap hate and malice and injustice.

As Christians we find ourselves in a world where national leaders have sown the seed of hate, malice and ill-will in the hearts and minds of millions of people who will not and cannot forget. We live in an armed and rigid world where the impoverished and greedy alike struggle for a share in the world's goods. Since the last World War, we have built up clear and convincing convictions on the matter of war. Today, under the pressure of the ruthless conquest of innocent peoples and the subtle propaganda of conflicting nations, many have changed their minds about this matter of war. While we hold firmly the doctrine of the supremacy of the individual conscience, dare we, under the strain of a crisis, change our minds about war? Should Christians fight in any particular crisis. To wait until war starts is to lose one's course and surrender one's considered judgment to an emotional stampede.

The New Testament is crystal clear in its attitude toward war. Jesus taught love not only toward God, but toward our neighbor and even for our enemies. "Love your enemies, and pray for them that persecute you; that ye may be sons of your Father who is in heaven." Jesus refused to support armed resistance to the Romans who cruelly oppressed His countrymen. The apostle Paul followed in the footsteps of his Master when he said, "Render to no man evil for evil. If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him to drink." The whole teaching of the New Testament rules out participation in war by the Christian. To justify war on the ground of Bible statements is absolute blasphemy.

All through the Old Testament, God blessed wars and permitted retributive vengeance. Hence there is Biblical ground to justify war. To use such an interpretation is to hold that what God approved once, He still approves; and there is no progress in divine revelation. Therefore it would be wrong to follow Christ in breaking racial barriers and in seeking world brotherhood because in the Old Testament God blessed war for Israel's sake only.

When we look into the Gospels of Mark, Matthew and Luke, we find that Jesus prophesied that wars must be.
To oppose war, then, is to oppose Christ. Anything the Bible predicts, though it may appear evil, is somehow good, and it must come to pass, for the Bible says it must, and therefore it must. That is "bad" and dangerous exegesis. It is unpardonable exegesis to range either God or Christ on the side of war. What is the value of a human being? What is God's will for all persons? How did Jesus and His disciples overcome evil? Why did Jesus have a substitute program for war, a program requiring greater cleanness, courage and resourcefulness?

Jesus' program was based on love and good will. The early church for 200 years followed His teaching. It was the normal policy of the Christians to refuse to serve in an army. All magistrates and soldiers were required to abandon their calling before baptism and the Christian who joined the army was excommunicated. Jesus had a substitute program for war and the early Christian church practiced the Master's imitations of gentleness and non-resistance.

A pacifist is not a passivist; do not let these words confuse you. Christ's program of non-resistance does not mean neutrality. Pacifists are labeled as those who do not care what goes on over in Europe as long as our shores are not menaced. They do care; their hearts have bled over Ethiopia, Spain, China, Czechoslovakia and Poland.
They are greatly apprehensive of Hitler's triumphs in the present hour.
Pacifism does not mean to bow the knee to tyrants, to take aggression without protest. Christian non-resist-

VETERANS GROUPS HONOR
MEMORY OF DECEASED

Graves of Hero Dead Decorated at Tullytown and Cornwells Heights

ATTEND SERVICE HERE

In memory of the honored dead who gave their lives for their country, service groups of Bristol conducted memorial services in Bristol, in Tully-town and Cornwells Heights yesterday.

Robert W. Bracken Post of the American Legion, the American Legion Auxiliary, Legion Cadets, Sons of the Legion, and Colonel J. M. Gosline Camp, Sons of Union Veterans, journeyed to Tullytown Cemetery and later to the Vandegrift burial ground in Cornwells Heights during the afternoon, to decorate the graves of those members who have passed on, and to hold a service befitting the occasion.
A parade through the main street of Tullytown preceded the service at the cemetery, the program including:
Song, "My Own Native Land," primary department; recitation, "The Flag Goes By," Eleanor Gerhart; cornet solo, "Onward Christian Soldiers," Gene Mather; children's chorus,
"There Are Many Flags in Many Lands"; recitation, "A Song for Our Flag," Edwin Termyna; dirge, American Legion Cadets; address, the Rev.
J. Carpenter Zook, pastor of Bristol Methodist Church, the Rev. Zook reminded that even though Memorial Day is a day of tender memories, yet it should not always be said, "We should not always look backward but forward. Do not think that that if things are not going right, that God has lost his right arm." He ended his discourse with the poem "Tear Down the Walls." A volley was fired over the graves of deceased veterans by a squad from the Gosline camp.

The Rev. Arthur Sargis, pastor of Eddington Presbyterian Church, delivered the address and offered prayer at the services in Cornwells Heights. The veterans groups decorated the graves, and held a brief program.

At the evening service which these groups, as well as Joseph A. Schu-macher Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and auxiliary, attended, the Rev.
Andrew George Solla, chaplain of Schumacher Post, was the speaker.
The service was held in Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour.

There were four texts used by the Rev. Solla. The one from Acts 12:26 was "What Mean You By This Service," he telling that just as in the Biblical time when this question was asked, that today those memorializing those who have served must explain the real meaning of Memorial Day to those who seek an answer. The next

LOUVAIN AGAIN

When the historic library of the University of Louvain, storehouse for centuries of European learning, was burned in 1914, the Germans admitted burning it. They sought to justify this act of vandalism by saying that Belgian snipers had fired on German soldiers in or near Louvain, and that the university city had to be punished for its inhabitants' insolence in daring to defend their homes.

That explanation didn't make a favorable impression on the world. So far from favorable was the impression that, when the library was rebuilt after the war by contributions from American universities, the architect, Whitney Warren, prepared an inscription in Latin reading "Furore Teutonico Diruta: Domo Americano Restituta"—"Destroyed by German Fury: Restored by American Generosity." This inscription was discarded as too unkind to the good, harmless Germans.

It doesn't make much difference now. For the library at Louvain has been burned again. The fruits of the "American generosity" are ashes. So are at least 700,000 volumes, many of them irreplaceable. Don't ask by whose "fury" the library was destroyed this time. American newspaper correspondents, "personal guests of Adolph Hitler," found the library a mass of smoking ruins when they entered Louvain. And the German officers who chaperoned them hadn't the faintest idea who started the fire.

Maybe the Belgians burned their own library. More likely the wicked British did it. Some good Germans were seen in the neighborhood, but surely members of this much misunderstood and maligned race wouldn't do a thing like that, would they?

HOPE FOR CHESTNUT TREES

There is hope that a blight-resistant chestnut tree may be produced. Dr. Arthur H. Graves, curator of public instruction at the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, has been working on the problem for twenty years. In ten years more he expects to have it solved.

Then there is prospect of the country from Northern New England to Alabama and westward to Illinois and Michigan being reforested with these large and valuable timber trees. Forty years ago this area was covered with chestnuts from 80 to 100 feet high, many of which had a girth of 22 feet.

About 1900 the cursed fungus which caused the blight was discovered on Long Island. It came here on trees imported from Japan and China. Followed its spread across the country, and in a few years the magnificent growth was gone.

Since then efforts have been centered on producing a hybrid which will have the tall upright growth of the American trees and the disease-resistant qualities of the Oriental species, which are only 40 to 50 feet tall. There are 2,000 trees on Dr. Graves' experimental tract, including all the 12 species found in various parts of the world. Japanese trees crossed with the American are not as resistant as those from Nippon. There are now 150 trees in the third generation and from these Dr. Graves hopes to keep crossing back on the Oriental species until, someday, an American tree that is immune to the blight will emerge.

An advocate of anarchy, during most of her life, Emma Goldman died just as it was getting good.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issues dated at Bristol Sept. 19, 1878. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

County superintendent Woodruff visited our public schools on Tuesday, and found affairs in a flourishing condition. Our county is a large one and when a superintendent comes to be spread over the whole of it, we do not get as much benefit from his large experience as we might under other circumstances.

Bristol is located on an island.

George L. Smith, one of the Bristol men who went to Brazil in the employ of the Messrs. Collins, of Philadelphia, has returned to Bristol. He left South America, clandestinely, starting last July. He says that the reports of the laborers being badly treated, and being furnished with insufficient food, and that of a bad quality, are true; and states that Walter Bache and Frank Stradling are very anxious to get home, and would follow his example and run away, if the opportunity offered.

Morton A. Walsley was absent from home last week, attending court, and all his family were away also. On Friday his daughter returned and was surprised to find upon entering the house that somebody had been there during the absence of the family, and ransacked the house from top to bottom. Every box, bureau, trunk, and closet that could be found, was overhauled, and clothing and goods of all kinds were strewn about the floors, as well as various papers, such as deeds, mortgages, etc., and affairs presented an appearance of confusion generally. Among the articles taken were eight silk dresses, a large quantity of jewelry, an open face gold watch, a lot of silver-ware, and most of the wedding presents of Mrs. Foster. Mr. Walsley's married daughter.

The entertainment to be given tomorrow afternoon and evening for the benefit of the yellow fever sufferers.

will have great attractions. Fine music will enliven a scene made beautiful by displays of flowers, fruit and fancy articles.

J. Herbert Shedd, of Providence, R. I., the most prominent sanitary engineer in this country, has been secured by the committee instructed to do so by council to visit Bristol, and give the benefit of his ideas as to the best mode of draining the town.

A number of the Bristol boys did a lively business in Yardleyville, last Saturday, in the oyster and peanut trade.

In 1753, the yellow fever was in Bristol, and the Episcopal Church was used as a hospital.

Conductors and brakemen on the Pennsylvania Railroad are to be numbered.

Livingston Mill is running at three-quarters time.

Harold Peirce is considered the best shot in the archery club.

Housekeepers are making reductions in the wages of servant girls.

A crowd of 25 tramps spent most of last Monday along the Hollow Creek.

Lewis Patterson recently took pity on a young tramp who applied to him for work, and hired him to assist about his place, and treated him as if he had been always a member of his household. . . but he resumed his tramp life again. There was nothing strange in that, and we don't know that there was anything strange in the young fellow's going around among Mr. Patterson's customers and collecting bills amounting to $25, and leaving the place so suddenly that he forgot to give the money to his employer.

Roosevelt already has registered disapproval of any relaxation of the so-called social legislation which he has put on the books, though how the job can be done well without relaxing them no one knows—including himself.

ANOTHER reason the Administration is anxious for early adjournment is that early adjournment would mean the death of every one of the controversial measures to which the White House has been either openly or secretly opposed. Among these are the Walter-Logan bill, the amended Hatch Act and the amendments to the wage-and-hour law and to the Wagner Act. Of course, adjournment in June also fits into the desire of many members of Congress up for re-election and anxious not to have to vote on these prickly proposals. There is also the wish to avoid facing the financial realities of the defense program—to wit, taxes.

ON the other hand, real pressure for Congress to stay on the job is coming from independent and Democratic as well as Republican quarters. It is being voiced by many newspapers and detached observers. First, the point is made that Congress has not finished its work and there is no excuse for adjournment without action on the above-cited bills for which there is both popular demand and public need. Second, it is contended that it is craven of Congress to refuse to face the fiscal facts. Ultimate cost of defense will be many more billions than are now asked. Financial preparation is as vital as physical preparation. You cannot just appropriate vast sums on top of such a debt as we now have without some provision for raising the money—that is, it can't be done without subjecting the nation to a peril almost as devastating as war itself.

EVEN though Mr. Roosevelt blithely says that taxes can be considered later, tax legislation is utterly indispensable and it is criminally foolish to ignore the facts and mislead the people in this respect. Tax legislation is a primary duty of Congress. A new tax bill, revised and increased, is an essential. The time to start work on it is now—not next year. If it is not done now, by next year we may be so deep in the financial mire that our whole defense effort will be crippled.

FINALLY, there is the point that Congress ought to be in session to watch and check the executive handling of the job. If, as suggested, Mr. Roosevelt is going to insist upon personally managing this program with Mr. Harry Hopkins, now living in the White House, and Mr. Henry Morgenthau as his chief aides, with a few industrialists like Mr. Knudson working under them, but without full power—if that is the plan, then the prospect is, indeed, appalling. If that sort of setup is really contemplated, then hope for an efficient, non-political job is "out of the window." The mere mention of Mr. Hopkins makes one think of waste and politics. Nor is Mr. Roosevelt's own record one to divert thought from either.

IT may be that the President, in his scheduled "fireside" chat on Sunday night, will make more clear how and what he plans to do and with whom. It may be that he will dissipate the suspicion that intimates are using the national emergency to rivet a third term upon the country and that he is conniving in the effort. It may be that he will allay the fears that he has no clear idea of how to do this job; that his beautiful phrases and inspiring words hide futility, and that in the back of his mind there is a political purpose which revolts some of his friends and stands in the way of national unity.

PERHAPS, he will do all those things. Certainly, there is a very simple way of obliterating the political suspicion. It has been pointed out by friends as well as foes. All he has to do is make it clear that he is not a candidate—and will not be a candidate. The response to that action would be overwhelming. It would raise him to a height of popular esteem such as no one in a hundred years has occupied. It would be enormously in the national interests and a very big thing to do. But, there is slight chance that he will do it. Instead, he is reported as highly delighted with the silly suggestions that we abandon our political system, do away with the campaign and by agreement of both parties elect him unanimously—on the theory that he is the indispensable man. Considering the conditions, the situation is little short of tragic.

Pastor Discusses Christian's Part If U. S. Gets Into War

ance is not surrender; it is non-violent resistance.

In the event of war, especially of invasion, Americans would suffer in such a program. Americans would fill jails and concentration camps. Americans would be stood up against the wall and shot. But do not forget that Americans would suffer if we went to war. They would be slain by thousands on the battlefields. American women and children would die in multitudes in bombed cities. The program of non-resistance is not easy; the pacifist knows that a price must be paid for peace and freedom.

Today we can't afford to be dreamers; we must be realists. We may be on the verge of war; someday our peace-loving nation may be attacked and invaded. What then? Is a program of non-resistance possible or is it one of those ideals which are so remote from reality they are not worth considering. I would earnestly recommend that you read Richard Gregg's "Power of Non-Violence." It contains an authentic story of Mr. Gandhi's campaign waged in India. It demonstrates that moral power is more than a match for military power; that a people who have faith in their cause and in the human nature of their opponents and in God, can wield a force greater than that of arms; that the spirit that can suffer is a more powerful champion than the sword.

Frederick the Great said: "If my soldiers began to think, not one would remain in the ranks." The Duke of Wellington admitted: "No man with any scruples of conscience is fit to be a soldier." When soldiers are met with non-violent people, they have to think; when they are met with guns, conscience is submerged and all they have to do is to keep on shooting. When blows are met with kindness and asault is met with fair play, conscience becomes active. This is a matter of history. And it is Christianity. "If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink."

The pronouncements of Christian leaders, almost without exception, have branded war as the antithesis of everything for which Christ stood. There is a tremendous bibliography on the subject. The position of the conscientious objector is both understandable and tenable, and I challenge you to read such books as Magregor's "New Testament Basis of Pacifism," Cadoux's "Christian Attitude to War," "Non-Violence in an Aggressive World," by Muste; and "The Sword or the Cross," by Kirby Page. This is but a brief list. What would be the effect upon the human race if for one or two generations the church united and consistently pitched her ministry upon the social gospel of Christ, judging and condemning war as being just what it is, forgetting all ecclesiastical barriers in joining and helping to remove the inequalities and injustices that provoke war. Only the ignorant think the church is doing her utmost to prevent war. The church as a whole has not even agreed that she should do so, much less utilize her resources. Would it not be more honorable to say that in certain matters Christ was wrong and His teachings are impractical, than to put Jesus, if you dare imagine it, behind a machine gun or pushing a bayonet into another man's breast or at the wheel of a bomber on either side in any war.

On every count war is condemned by intelligent people. As Christians we must base our conclusions on divine revelation. Are the Scriptures on the side of war? Is God on the side of war? If the United States is drawn into war, what should I do as a Christian? Whereas, the teachings of Jesus and His gospel of love and brotherhood are completely incompatible with the practices of war, therefore, what ever we may consider wise and Christian regarding national self-defense we must definitely repudiate all aggressive war. We must cross no national boundary line to kill and to destroy, nor dare we, as followers of Christ, support our government in sending its army or navy to do so.

Whereas, war is utterly contradictory to the spirit and ideals of Christianity and carries with it destruction of spiritual and moral values therefore the time has come for every Christian to register his conviction against war and to formulate a personal commitment to the mind of Christ in a definite stand against war. Because war is the ultimate denial of what Christ lived and died for, because war is an almost limitless blooder of physical, moral and spiritual deterioration, because war is disloyalty to the best interests of my country, because war is treason against the human family, therefore I want my name in the permanent records of my church as a conscientious objector. Whether or not the United States shall be drawn into war, because I believe that policies of good will and justice offer greater security, I set down my name on permanent record to make concrete my purpose not to participate in the prosecution of any war of any nature or origin.

The world has tried war long enough; it is time we tried something else. Christ's program of non-violent resistance is that something. Unless we break the deadly circle of war breeding war, civilization is doomed. There is a quotation worth remembering and pondering: "Dying for one's ideals with non-violent resistance is one way to make those ideals live; killing or wounding for the sake of those ideals, kills or wounds the ideals as well."

"TITAN TOWER" by JAMES G. CHESNUTT

Story So Far

Drawn together as they aid accident victim atop Titan Tower, new skyscraper, Nurse Linda Morton and Dr. Bill Blaine sense mutual affection. With memories of her love for late Airman Mike Morton still warm, however, Linda feels very mixed emotions as she day-dreams of possible romance with the debonair young medic. After her harrowing roof-top experience, Linda returns home, unmoved. Her mind goes back to that tragic night when Mike was killed in a crash. After his death, no word of sympathy came for Linda from Mike's wealthy parents who disapproved of her marriage. So, when Mickey was born, she did not let them know. Linda's reverie is interrupted by the arrival of her friends, naive Janice Marberry and sophisticated Josephine Monroe. Speaking of the accident, Linda asks if they know Dr. Blaine. She learns from Jo he is in the Social Register and his father owns Titan Tower. The matchmaking Jo defects that Linda is more than professionally interested in Bill and urges her to "play single. Men like Bill Blaine are interested in GIRLS, not mothers." . . . Linda says she will never deny Mickey but, later that night, she is torn between love for her son and a young woman's yearning for romance. Next day, at luncheon, Linda goes up to the roof garden hoping to meet Bill. He is not there but pleasant-faced Steve Hubbard is. Steve is wearing a white smock so Linda asks if he is a doctor. "You might say I'm sort of a specialist. I have the biggest practice in Titan Tower and the biggest patients—variety of complaints from bad pumps to leaking valves." Next day, Linda meets Bill on the roof by appointment.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

"What a picture of the Fair," Bill enthused. Their deck chairs had been very close together before they rose and walked to the parapet. They could have held hands, Linda thought, if they had been sappy kids and didn't care about the presence of others on the roof. "How that thing has progressed! Only a few months until we'll be enjoying it."

"Odd what a drive a person can get out of watching something built up like that from nothing," Bill went on. "Funny how you attach to yourself a sort of personal pride in building and achievement in which you've had not the slightest part. I used to watch, from our windows, the two bridges being built—and felt as though I were a part of them."

"Well," he broke off, laughing. "It's all very fanciful, and I don't expect you to understand what I mean."

But Linda said, very seriously: "I understand."

And she did.

She was thinking back to the time that she and Mike had shared in the feeling of ownership of this very structure upon the roof of which she and Bill Blaine were now standing. Neither she nor Mike could dream that one day their "Junior" would bring a new love into Linda's life.

"At night, Linda," Bill had not noted her serious turn, "it's grand—I mean the view of the bridges and the bay from our office windows. It's like an enchanted picture; a moving picture on a screen of darkness—the amber chains of the bridge lamps, the crawling ferries and the twinkling lights of homes, with people in them, living their own important little lives, over on the hills. . . .

"Listen to the lad," he turned to her and smiled. "Sounds like something that should have a harp-and-cello obbligato."

"No," said Linda, "I think it's beautiful."

"Linda," he said, "I want you to see it. With me. Will you—some night?"

"I . . ." Linda began. She didn't finish. She and Bill were no longer alone.

"The sun brings out the nicest things!" It was a deep, resonant voice, with laughter in it.

"Pardon me," Steve Hubbard continued. "Jo," Linda said the next morning, after knocking at the door down the hall, being admitted by a sleepy Janice and following her into Jo Monroe's bedroom, "may I borrow your car, just for today?"

"Well, darling, I'll tell you," Jo answered, languorously stretching herself and throwing back the covers from her pajama-clad form, "Jarvis is busy today, but if you can do without a chauffeur, it's practically yours."

"Thanks," Linda said. "I have a very special, particular reason for wanting it."

She thought of Steve Hubbard's pose—pretending to be a doctor

The More The Merrier

By Frances Lee Barton

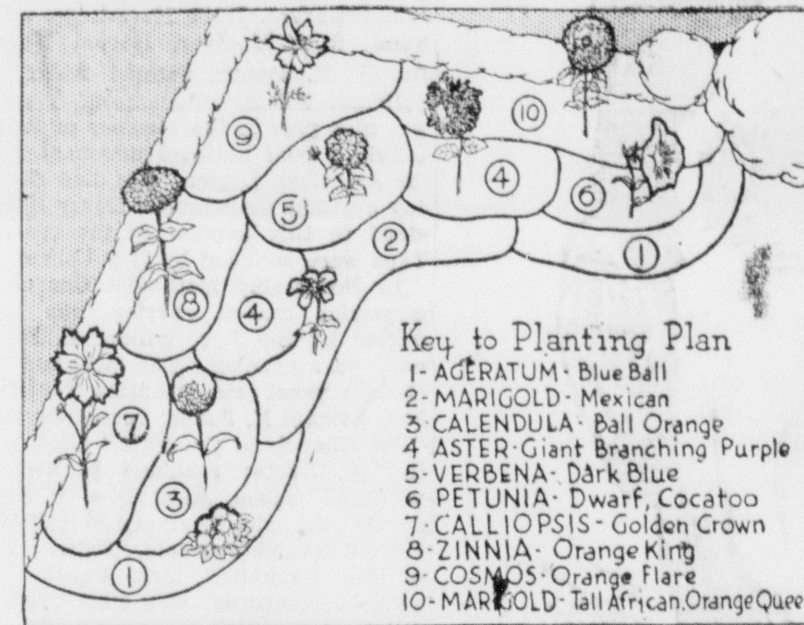

WHEN our forebears coined those old sayings, "the more the merrier" and "you can't have too much of a good thing," they must have been referring to a cookie tin crammed to overflowing! But if our grandmothers and our great aunts had known about that modern invention, ice-box cookies, they surely would have burst out with "there's never a good but there might be a better."

An ice box cookie glorified with the goodness of coconut is a supreme triumph in this type of cookie.

Coconut Ice Box Cookies
4 cups sifted cake flour; 3 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1 1/2 cups softened butter or other shortening; 1 1/2 cups sugar; 2 eggs, unbeaten; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 3 cups shredded coconut.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Combine butter, sugar, and eggs, beating thoroughly; then add vanilla and coconut. Add flour gradually, mixing well after each addition. Divide dough in four parts. Place on waxed paper and shape into rolls, 1 1/2 inches in diameter; roll each in waxed paper. Chill overnight, or until firm enough to slice. Cut in 1/4 inch slices; bake on ungreased baking sheet in hot oven (400° F.) 5 to 7 minutes. Makes 12 dozen cookies.

Summer Garden Border of Vivid Yet Cool Colors

Key to Planting Plan

- 1-AGERATUM-Blue Ball
- 2-MARIGOLD-Mexican
- 3-CALENDULA-Ball Orange
- 4-ASTER-Giant Branching Purple
- 5-VERBENA-Dark Blue
- 6-PETUNIA-Dwarf, Cocotao
- 7-CALLIOPSIS-Golden Crown
- 8-ZINNIA-Orange King
- 9-COSMOS-Orange Flare
- 10-MARIGOLD-Tall African Orange Queen

A color planting which is at once vivid and cool, which will light up a dull corner of your garden with-out making a warm day seem warmer, is one which combines blue purple with yellow and orange flowers.

This is a combination which advertising men say possesses maximum visibility, yet when expressed in the soft and easily blended hues of flowers it is delicate and pleasing. Many summer borders are confined to these color groups, with all pinks and reds barred. Bright sunlight does not fade the blue and orange flowers but seems to bring out their brilliance while each of these colors makes the other look far better than it would alone.

In the design are suggestion for flowers to be used, and locations to plant them in order to produce an effect which is entirely informal, and yet will have the balance both of mass and color, which is necessary even in informal plantings. The varieties which are suggested may be replaced by others of like coloring, if desired. Mexican marigold is one of the oldest marigolds, yet is still unrivaled for border effect. It produces large bushy plants covered with small single golden flowers.

In place of the tall African marigold Orange Queen, one of the new large flowered varieties, such as Tetra, Sunset Giant, or Orange Supreme could be used. The planting suggested would not only produce a stunning garden picture, but it would provide an abundance of cut flowers throughout the summer.

Italians Organize To Fight 5th Columnists

Mr. Russo told the gathering that it is his intention to get groups of this character started throughout the county, state and country, if possible. Yesterday's meeting was only a preliminary one and many in the audience were wont to adopt resolutions, but they were set aside until such time that more could be invited to attend the meetings.

"We have no ill feeling against any country, but your business, your home, your children, and your life's earnings are at stake in this country, so let the other countries have their worries," stated the speaker.

"If you were an American and went to Italy to reside and thought that Italy was a better place to live, you would become an Italian citizen and in case Italy went to war, Mussolini would expect you to fight for him. That is what America expects of you who have pledged allegiance to this flag, (here a large American flag overhead was pointed to) when you became American citizens, to protect it whatever side she took in any war."

"Remember! Any person who is against America, is against your home, your children, your earnings, and your personal safety, so don't talk against this country and do not permit anyone else to do so. If anyone whom you know may be against this country and in your opinion may be seeking to undermine this government of the United States, do not hesitate to report him to the police. All police matters are confidential."

"We do not know what is happening over on the other side, but we know we must depend on our leadership to keep us out of this war. This country took care of you, whether or not you were a citizen, during the depression and is still taking care of many, so now it is your turn."

Several times during his speech, Mr. Russo told his listeners that if any of them don't like this country and are not willing to fight for it, they should pack up and leave.

In conclusion, Mr. Russo said, "We don't like war, the only thing that comes from war is destruction, misery, hatred and suffering. You should all sincerely pledge yourself to this nation that should it be in danger of attack, either directly or indirectly, you must protect it with everything that you possess, even your life. So now when you go home, talk to your children and remind them that they are Americans, that you owe your loyal support to this nation against any that may be threatening our safety."

The entire audience stood and pledged support to America.

In the course of his talk, Mr. Russo drifted from the war topic to the good work of the American Red Cross and about the lack of support to this cause among the Italian class of people in this vicinity.

Without solicitation, men of the audience began to walk to the secretary's desk and began to contribute. A total of $95 was realized and this will go to the Bristol Branch of the Red Cross for war relief work.

A representative of the American Legion, Robert Downing, was present and he along with Dr. Joseph Pasceri gave brief remarks.

St. Joseph Alta, 2nd, was secretary of the meeting.

It was decided to hold the second meeting next Sunday afternoon in the St. Ann's meeting room.

TULLYTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Willis and son, Donald Willis, Frankford, and Miss Doris Patterson, Penns Manor, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay.

Veterans Groups Honor Memory of Deceased text, Matthew 26:13 was "Jesus said This also shall be told as a memorial to her," the reference being to the anointment of Christ by the woman with the flask of precious ointment. From Luke 26:19 he used "This do ye in remembrance of me," this referring to the memorial of the Lord's supper. The speaker brought out the fact that before Christ could save man-kind he had to shed his own blood, he adding that "all that we have has cost blood or sacrifice. From Joshua came the text "What mean ye by these stones?" the reference being to the memorial stones placed by the thankful pilgrims after being granted a dry passage of the Jordan. The Rev. Solla added: "At all the national cemeteries, in Flanders field, and elsewhere, under each stone lies the body of a man who has served his country, and who has given his life for his country and flag. The stones are a memorial to his sacrifice."

Special number included a selection by the church choir; duet, Mr. and Mrs. John Brehm; solo, Percy G. Ford.

Honor Memories Of Late Members of Post killed in action in Montfaucon, France, on September 27, 1918.

The vicar, the Rev. Louis E. Fifer, conducted the dedicatory and memorial services, and for his address used as the text: "Wherefore, receiving a kingdom that cannot be shaken, let us have grace, whereby we may offer service well pleasing to God with reverence and awe."

A number of members of the post and Auxiliary, were in attendance.

In his message, the Rev. Fifer paid tribute "to the sons and daughter of America who shed their blood for world peace. The war to end war did not accomplish its purpose, and it would seem that blood was shed in vain as the year 1940 finds the world in another great war." He then asked his hearers to look into the future "to see what we can do to prove they did not die in vain."

The speed and lightning swiftness of the striking blows by dictators at small countries that were peaceful were cited, countries that were time-honored, yet helpless; the tragedy of the shattering of kingdoms and of world peace being considered. The Rev. Fifer contrasted the type of kingdom that Hitler would set up, with the Kingdom of Heaven established by Jesus Christ—"the kingdom that will draw all men unto God, based on the principles of peace and love."

He added that "too many men are cold to the teachings of Jesus Christ and the things for which He gave his life. He gave his life that the world might know the true meaning of peace."

Unless Hitler can stamp out Christianity he cannot succeed in his aims. We are being false to Jesus Christ and those who gave their lives in war, unless we can bring ourselves to see the necessity of the Christian religion."

The vicar expressed the hope "May nothing cause this nation to be drawn into the conflict. But if war should ever come may the sons of our nation be lead aright by God!" After considering the principles of good citizenship he added that "We as a free nation cannot tolerate any interference with our civil liberties, our schools, or our church." Another pertinent point was "In the kingdom of God is not only the salvation of our country, but the salvation of the world. This kingdom teaches a manly kind of love which should appeal to all men. Let us beseech Him that His word may be our law; His paths our chosen way. . . . Let us keep faith with those who are near and dear to us. . . . Let us keep faith with our children yet unborn."

The late members of the post whose memories were honored by the placing of a red carnation in each of the seats reserved for the purpose were: George Bennett, Andrew Brown, Charles Cornell, William Dahl, Benedicto DeStolfo, Charles Donnelly, John Ehrlin, James Garvin, Irvin Hermitage, John Keim, Ross MacIver, Harold Myers, Dr. R. R. Paxon, Samuel Ridge, C. Sullivan, Winder Williamson. Tribute was also paid to the memory of Ralph O'Neil, a past national commander of the American Legion, who died Saturday evening. Commander Harry Heller aided in this portion of the service. Taps were sounded by Roy Carver.

In Neshaminy Methodist Church, a Memorial season service was conducted by the Rev. Wilmer E. Harkness, last evening. The program included: vocal solo, "Tenting Tonight," Mrs. Samuel K. Faust; vocal selection, "The Church in the Vale," Miss Adeline E. Reetz; readings in keeping with the season, Miss Elma E. Haefner; vocal solo, "Memory Bells," Mrs. Harold Dassenburg; solo, "Battle Hymn of the Republic," Mrs. Faust. The piano accompanist was Miss Clara L. Illick. A message in keeping with the day was delivered by the pastor.
